What is Anti-social Behaviour?

Anti-social behaviour is defined as 'behaviour by a person which causes, or is likely to cause, harassment, alarm or distress to persons not of the same household as the person' (Antisocial Behaviour, Crime and Policing Act 2014).

There are three main categories for antisocial behaviour, depending on how many people are affected:

Personal antisocial behaviour is when a person targets a specific individual or group.

Nuisance antisocial behaviour is when a person causes trouble, annoyance or suffering to a community.

Environmental antisocial behaviour is when a person's actions affect the wider environment, such as public spaces or buildings.

What your beat team has been up in the past month:

- Recovered an untaxed vehicle which was causing an obstruction to the road after community intelligence was received.
- Targeting areas which have been identified by the community as local hotspots for anti-social behaviour.
- A beat surgery was held at Stoney Stanton Library so the beat team could listen to community concerns.
- Engaged with local youths after issues were raised about off-road motorbikes being used in an anti-social manner.
- Assisted response colleagues with several incidents across the local area.
- Reviewed community intelligence that has been received so that further action can be taken.

If you have any issues or concerns you want to make the beat team aware of please get in touch via our communication channels.
